LATE BREAKING news

Temperature, more than precipitation, has factored heavily thus far into the 2014-15 season. Resorts in the Rockies are celebrating up to two feet of new snow in the past two days, while rain plagues other regions.

Ski areas in Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming are sitting near or above average in terms of snowpack for the season, while the Pacific Northwest has seen much of its precipitation fall in the form of rain.

An ice ghost— chair after overnight rainfall.

In Canada, conditions appear to be better in the West than in the East. In British Columbia, Whistler Blackcomb is reporting base depths of about 50 inches. Sunshine Village in Alberta has all of its lifts running on about three feet.

REMEMBERING franco

Alfred Frank Antonicelli

01/09/1925 - 12/30/2014

Those we've loved are never really lost to us... We feel them in so many special ways... Memories of times together will never be gone...

Alfred Frank Antonicelli, known to most as Franco, was born in San Diego on January 9, 1925. His father, Pasquale, immigrated to the United States in 1913 at the age of 18, from his native Italy, Gioia del Colle. After moving to San Diego he met a beautiful young Italian girl, Nunziella Beltipo, whom he married. Franco was their only child. Nunziella died at the age of 28 from tuberculosis.

During her hospitalization, Franco was foster cared for by Kate Sessions, the botanist and "mother of Balboa Park." Franco's father was Kate Sessions most loyal and dedicated employee, serving as her right hand man in the planning and development of Balboa Park.

Franco experienced the loss of his mother at the young age of eight years old. His father returned to his village in Italy, met and later married Angela Isdraele Romano.

Angela raised Franco into adulthood, becoming as close to him as any natural mother could be. Both Franco and his father, Pasquale, loved the United States, one serving in World War I and Franco in World War II. Franco's service included over two years in the Pacific as a Navy radarman aboard a destroyer escort, the Bowers. During his service he received numerous decorations that included the Purple Heart.

Franco returned to San Diego after an honorable discharge to join the family business with his father, who by then had opened his own nursery business on Washington Street in Mission Hills. The family's collective dream of success in the U.S. was becoming a reality. The nursery business served as the foundation for what became the largest land holding in Mission Hills by any single property owner.

Franco never lost his rather humble approach to life nor his love for his long lasting heritage. He met and married the true love of his life and soul mate, Sara Caburlotto, in 2011, a lovely Italian lady whom he too met in Italy in 2002.

Franco was a remarkable man of the utmost integrity, a most generous philanthropist to many in need, a founding figure in the Mission Hills community, a wonderful friend to many, a continuing presence to his immediate family and a most loving husband. He will be missed by all that knew him and will remain in our hearts forever.

A celebration of his life will be held on his 90th birthday at 10:00 a.m., on January 9, 2015, at St. Vincent de Paul Church, 4080 Hawk Street, San Diego 92103. Interment immediately follows at Holy Cross Cemetery, 4470 Hilltop Drive, San Diego 92102.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to St. Vincent de Paul School or Rady Childrens Hospital. The family would like to thank everyone for their support and love in remembering Franco.

Franco was a gentleman and one of the kindest, most generous men we know. We will remember Franco as a terrific snow skier, a real gentleman, an amusing story teller and a wonderful friend.

Lots of blood, sweat & tears went into Lindsey's comeback

"Lindsey Vonn: The Climb," a one-hour special chronicling the 2010 Olympic downhill champion's comeback from two major knee surgeries, will premiere on NBC on January 25, 2015 at noon PST.

Winter | 2014,

On February 5, 2013, Lindsey crashed in the World Championships super-G in Schladming, Austria. She suffered complete MCL and ACL tears in her right knee, was airlifted off the course and needed season-ending surgery.

Lindsey reinjured her knee while training on November 20, 2013, re-tearing her right ACL. She attempted a comeback for the Sochi Olympics, but her knee gave out in a race in Val d'Isere, France, one month later. She withdrew from Sochi and had another surgery.

Lindsey returned to skiing in competition in December and won two of her first four races, moving within one victory of the all-time women's World Cup record.

The documentary follows Lindsey physical and emotional struggles over a two-year journey back to the top of her sport, including having to watch the Sochi Olympics with her family at home.

This film is a compelling and very human portrait of an extraordinary athlete fighting pain and uncertainty to regain her place as the dominant figure in one of the most demanding and dangerous sports in the Olympic world.

Lindsey will return to the World Championships near her home in Vail, CO, in February, with unprecedented coverage from NBC Sports and Universal Sports.

Encore presentations of "Lindsey Vonn: The Climb" will air on NBCSN beginning in February. The film will be available digitally on Red Bull TV starting January 28, 2015.

The film was produced by Red Bull Media House, in association with NFL Films and NBC Olympics.

exciting CHANGES for skiers in the west

Excerpted from saminfo.com New Owner for Durango ? Snowbowl

A Durango businessman, James Coleman, has bought Durango Mountain Resort (DMR) and Arizona Snowbowl. Further, he is teaming them with two New Mexico areas, Sipapu and Pajarito, to form a four-resort group that collectively tallys 3,088 acres, 26 lifts, more than 200 trails and 13 terrain parks.

Coleman has committed to retaining the current management teams at both ski areas. According to various reports, Coleman plans to unite the four resorts under a new, as yet unnamed company.

In 2014, Sipapu and Pajarito unveiled the New Mexico Power Pass, New Mexico's only season pass with unrestricted access to two ski areas plus free skiing at more than 25 partner mountains in New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and throughout the country. Coleman said that Durango and Snowbowl will maintain their existing pass partnerships, which offer free or discounted lift tickets to select season passholders.

Squaw's Glading Boosts

More than 5,000 dead or diseased trees were removed to improve the natural habitat, reduce the risk of wildfire, and, just as importantly, provide unprecedented access to tree skiing and riding at Squaw Valley.

Lower-level vegetation that could potentially serve as fire fuel was removed from the East end of the ski resort from Red Dog Face to Poulsen's Gully. Squaw removed dead and diseased trees from the targeted area via helicopter rather than skidding the trees in sensitive areas, minimizing environmental impacts. Most of the trees will be processed for timber; remaining materials will be chipped for future use.

This project will open nearly 100 acres of enhanced upper-intermediate to expert terrain, including three newly designated glade areas as well as a new connector trail to ease access back to the lifts. This terrain was previously inaccessible, or extremely limited, due to dense standing and fallen trees, which made it difficult for skiers and riders to negotiate the terrain safely.

Thinning provides valuable benefit by effectively utilizing the available water for the most viable trees, and the removal of dead or diseased trees dramatically reduces the risk of fire.

VAIL EPIC discovery plan

The U.S. Forest Service has published a final record of decision regarding Vail's comprehensive summer activities proposal, "Epic Discovery, a Summer Mountain." The decision is the first to stem from passage of the Ski Area Recreational Opportunities Act in 2011.

Epic Discovery encourages "learning through play," promoting environmental education and conservation through a variety of experiences. The main approved activities include zipline tours, mountain biking, a mountain coaster, and an observation deck. Construction will begin in summer 2015. All the activities are expected to be operational by summer 2016.

- Micro-interpretive centers for education, integration and activities around the mountain for an hands on experience.
- Game Creek and Front Side guided zipline tours incorporate zips, aerial bridges, and forest education.
- Expanded hiking and mountain biking trails will offer comprehensive interpretive and directional signage.
- Family Forest Adventure Park, a playground of rope challenges and bridges, introduces young children to the forest.
- Wildwood Observation Deck provides a panoramic view over the Back Bowls.

Following passage of the Ski Area Recreational Opportunities Act in 2011 the Epic Discovery proposal was submitted in July 2012, and underwent a comprehensive environmental review.

SNOW INDUSTRY bulletin Park City Canyons RESORT

Announcing the most impactful capital plan in the history of U.S. ski industry.

Vail Resorts plans to link two of North America's greatest ski areas – creating the largest resort in the United States with 7,300 acres of skiable terrain. The plan outlines more than $50 million worth of resort improvements in 2015 that include:

Winter | 2014,

The Interconnect Gondola

An eight-passenger, high-speed gondola running from the base of the existing Silver Lift at Park City to the Flatiron Lift at Canyons. When conditions allow, gondola passengers will be able to unload at the top of Pine Cone Ridge and ski or ride directly down to Park City's Thaynes Canyon trail via gated ski access or to the Iron Mountain area at Canyons through new trails that will be created from Pine Cone Ridge.

Park City Lifts Upgrade

King Con will be upgraded from a 4-person to 6-person high-speed detachable chair, meaning increased lift capacity. Motherlode will switch from a fixed-grip triple to a 4-person highspeed detachable, similarly improving the number of guests it can carry.

Restaurant Upgrades

A completely new Snow Hut restaurant, replacing the current Snow Hut next to the base of Park City's Silverlode Lift and the Park City terminal for the Interconnect Gondola, will include 500 indoor seats and a top-of-theline kitchen and culinary experience. Meanwhile, upgrades to Summit House will improve the flow of diners and increase seating. At Canyons, Red Pine Restaurant will be renovated to the tune of 250 additional indoor seats.

Other Improvements

The plan rounds out with additional snowmaking on two trails in Canyons' Iron Mountain area to handle increased skier traffic for Interconnect Gondola access. We'll also be putting almost $5 million of "catch up" maintenance and upgrades at Park City, given the lack of spending at the resort over the past few years. This "catch up" maintenance spending is in addition to the normal annual maintenance capital for the two resorts of $5 million.

It's the dawn of an exciting new era at Park City Mountain Resort and Canyons. Stay tuned for updates throughout the process.

LIFT TICKET deals KIDS ski free at most resorts

Early season lift packages are gone—here are some in-season discounts

While most of the best season pass packages are no longer available, it doesn't mean there aren't still some lift tickets deals to be had.

With the cost of full-day lift tickets well over $100 at many resorts, frugal families may find skiing too expensive this year. But instead of skipping the slopes all season, try these simple ideas to save big on lift tickets.

Liftopia

Deeply discounted tickets on Liftopia. com. Know when and where you plan to ski? Head to Liftopia and buy your tickets in advance for up to 90% off regular price.

Liftopia sells discounted, date-specific lift tickets, rentals and lessons to more than 150 resorts in North America. You must buy in advance for the date you plan to ski, so purchase real early if you are planning to go over a holiday.

Local stores

Buy your tickets in advance at local stores like Costco or REI. Most local ski shops offer discounted lift tickets when buying at the shop, but search online to find area-specific deals.

REI and Costco members can purchase discounted tickets in stores, but you will need to check with your local store to find out which tickets you can purchase, usually local mountains.

Shell Gas

UPacificRimAlliance.org Winter | 2014/2015 SUSTAINABILITY understanding CARBON OFFSETS

Heat-trapping greenhouse gases are now at record-high levels

Submitted by Catherine Ohl

As we experience the start of what looks to be another crazy winter, we are hearing more about carbon neutrality, carbon offsets, carbon footprint, green standards, greenwashing and more.

Carbon neutrality begins with reduction. It takes a concentrated effort to produce less waste and use more renewable energy. After reduction has reached its limit, or its comfortable threshold, carbon offsets can make up for the rest.

So what exactly is a carbon offset? When you buy an offset, you fund projects that reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. The projects might restore forests, update power plants and factories, build solar or wind plants or increase the energy efficiency of buildings and transportation.

GHG emissions mix quickly with the air and, unlike other pollutants, spread around the entire planet. Because of this, it doesn't really matter where GHG reductions take place just as long as fewer emissions enter the atmosphere.

GHG emissions are a global problem. Yet it's much cheaper to reduce or absorb emissions in developing regions of the world. Offsets are often less expensive than retrofitting a building, converting to renewable energy or eliminating auto emissions in developed nations. Carbon offsets let you pay to reduce the global GHG total instead of making radical or impossible reductions of your own.

Businesses and individuals often buy carbon offsets to reduce their carbon footprint or to build up their "green image." Voluntary offsets should not be used as an excuse to overindulge in the production of GHG and not feel guilty about it. Before buying offsets, people should first reduce their own emissions— limit travel, get a hybrid vehicle, choose energy-efficient appliances or convert to renewable energy.

The concept of buying carbon offsets gets confusing because you are actually paying for non-emissions—something that doesn't even exist. Since this offsetting is new territory, authenticity is being bought about with new green standards— Voluntary Carbon Standard (VCS), the Gold Standard and the Climate, Community and Biodiversity Standard. While these standards focus on different types of offsets, all of the standards share the goal of bringing order to the booming carbon-offset business to prevent greenwashing.

Carbon offsets should encourage individuals and businesses to take responsibility for their part in global climate change. Offsets don't excuse excess, but should be viewed as an aid for people and the environment throughout the world.

Driving, flying, electricity and natural gas emit CO2 contributing to climate change.

EQUIPMENT roll out SKIS/BOARDS rent/buy

The most essential pick of ski equipment to own is your boots

Everyone has their own opinion as to whether they should rent or buy ski equipment. The argument for and against is changing and very personal.

The same reasoning for buying or renting skis applies to snowboards.

Buying

You can buy a ski for the conditions you plan to ski most of the time. You learn how your skis handle and get a feel for what they do best. You also learn how your ski performs in different conditions. averages one fly away trip a year and perhaps four two-day trips to the local mountain. If you do the math, you will break even in less than two years.

• Of course, if you buy new skis at the end of the season or used demo skis, your break even point will arrive sooner.

With your own skis, there is no waiting in line for rental equipment once you arrive on the slopes. You just have to click in and you're on the slopes.

Your skis can also be mounted with bindings that are set up just for your boots, rather than the multi-adjustable and heavier rental bindings.

Financially, it might be less expensive to buy skis. This of course depends on the number of days and types of ski trips you typically take in a year. For instance:

- Top of the line new skis, poles and bindings will run you about $1000.
- There's an additional cost of a bag for transporting, airline baggage charges, and the occasional tuning & wax.
- You can figure top of the line ski rental may cost around $50 a day.
- Let's say a typical ski club person

Renting

You can rent skis for the day's snow conditions — if you buy skis, you're going to end up skiing your skis in whatever the conditions. And you can potentially change the ski during the trip if conditions change. There's no transporting skis. Carrying skis around is tough — they're long and unwieldy, and make getting on public transportation and through airports more difficult.

Most airlines now charge for travelling with skis. If your trip involves renting a car, you have to get a car large enough to fit the skis, or rent a ski rack. This means that for traveling by air, it's often cheaper to rent skis.

If you rent skis, you just hand them back at the end of the ski trip. Often when you rent skis you can leave them at the shop close to the slopes. No schlepping them back and forth from where you are staying.

In Conclusion

If you're a beginner, or a child, you should rent skis so you can upgrade your skis as your skiing progresses.

Just because you own skis or a board doesn't mean you can't rent— like when you wake up to a foot of powder and you only brought your skinny skis.

Whether you choose to buy or rent depends on how often you ski, your level of skiing and how you travel to the slopes.

Whether you rent or buy, a must buy is your own custom fitted boots with proper sport orthotics.

championships RETURN Winter 2014/2015 WORLD CUP Vail • Beaver Creek 2015

Vail offers lots of free events- concerts, parties and all the races

The 2015 FIS Alpine World Ski Championships in Vail and Beaver Creek will showcase over 700 athletes from more than 70 nations.

These World Championships represent the largest and most impressive collection of ski racing talent in the world, second only to the Olympics.

The tradition of alpine ski racing has been interwoven throughout Vail and Beaver Creek's history since Vail Mountain opened to the world in 1962. Founded by a ski racer, Vail hosted its first racing event, a U.S. Ski Team training camp, one week after opening and went on to host numerous World Cup races.

The prestigious FIS Alpine World Ski Championships have been held in the U.S. only three times before, including 1989 and 1999 for which the Vail Valley also played host, firmly establishing the community as the ski racing capital of North America.

Vail is set to serve as the official hub of the ceremonies and nightly festival events – concerts, parties, art and culinary features, a big-screen stadium and more – from February 2 through 15, while Beaver Creek will host the majority of the competition – all of which is free to spectators, unlike championships in Europe!

Vail will also host racing events at Golden Peak, including the Nation's Team Event (February 10) and the Men's Giant Slalom and Slalom qualification competitions (February 12 and 14). Stadium seating at all races is free and open to the public. Spectators can access all races for free by bus, or by taking Trail 2015 (Beaver Creek Races).

The 2015 World Championships will showcase a variety of free concerts and surprise performances from renowned artists. Headliners will take the stage nightly in Championships Plaza (Solaris), Vail, at 7pm following the day's races and Medals Ceremony.

KIDS' korner Winter | 2014/2015 GOOD STUFF for the kids & grandkids

ski tips from — TOP KID INSTRUCTORS

We want our kids and grandkids to love skiing and riding as much as we do. So here's a few tips from the experts-kid instructors.

Talk about the trip long before you go and continue to talk about it more and more as the date approaches. They will get so excited.

— Mya Frantti, Deer Valley, Utah

Have the kids try on skis walk around in boots so the feeling is familiar. — Mya Frantti, Deer Valley, Utah

Dress kids for comfort—layers are best. It can make things easier to remove clothing if they become warm, and layers keep them warm if it's cold outside Also put hand warmers in their pockets just in case. — Mary Flinn Ware, Park City Mountain Resort, Utah

Always protect kids' eyes with goggles or glasses and their skin with sunscreen. Higher elevations can make you learn this lesson the hard way. — Mary Flinn Ware, Park City Mountain Resort, Utah

Arrive early, preferably the day prior to get rentals if needed, to get tickets in hand and hopefully avoid lines during peak season. It is great to let your children know where they are going and what will take place throughout the day, to reassure them. — Mary Flinn Ware, Park City Mountain Resort, Utah

Some children will not do well in a group lesson and should be considered for private instruction. Most kids enjoy being around others their own age and ability. A good instructor will engage the group with social interaction as well as ski improvements and will end the day with excitement. — Dave Hartley, Steamboat, Colorado

Kids learn differently than grown-ups. Most kids need to get the basic idea of what you want them to do, and then they need to go do it. Repetition with coaching is the prescription for children. They will learn by doing and not realize that they are getting taught something. — Dave Hartley, Steamboat, Colorado

Before you try and teach your child to ski, make sure you have solid skiing skills, so you can completely focus on them. And make learning a game, not just talk.

Games like pizza/French-fries and red light/green light are great. — Mya Frantti, Deer Valley, Utah

Terrain and ability selection are critical. Ski where they can ski, not where you want to ski. — Mya Frantti, Deer Valley, UT

Pace yourself. Let them learn at their own speed. When they get tired, stop and have some hot chocolate, make a snow cone or build a snowman. Don't rush their time to explore and learn. — Mya Frantti, Deer Valley, Utah

Have your child show you what they learned in their ski class. It's amazing how psyched a kid can become to show a parent their new trick, and likely the parent will be amazed.

— Dave Hartley, Steamboat, Colorado

UPdate PacificRimAlliance. HISTORY Sugar Bowl celebrating SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS

Starred with Goofy in "The Art of Skiing."

Lillian Disney, Diane Disney, Hannes Schroll and Walt Disney at Sugar Bowl.

In the 1941 Walt Disney cartoon "The Art of Skiing," Goofy slips and slides out of the shed-roofed Sugar Bowl Ski Resort lodge, where he's bunking, and heads to the slopes for several spectacular spills. In the background, there's occasional melodic yodeling performed by resort founder Hannes Schroll, an Austrian ski racer and instructor who also spent time at Yosemite National Park.

The yodeling has declined markedly since the ski area opened 75 years ago, but the still privately owned resort and lodge looks much as it did in 1939. Moreover, the black-diamond runs remain as challenging.

In the last few years, Sugar Bowl has invested $20 million in upgrades, such as adding the Crow's Peak lift. Sugar Bowl also acquired the nearby 6,000-acre Royal Gorge cross-country ski resort and is investing $750,000 in improvements. With additions and changes, Sugar Bowl now has 102 trails spread over 1,650 acres, with 13 lifts and slopeside parking at the foot of the Mt. Judah Express.

Disney, an early investor and an avid skier, as well as the many other Hollywood luminaries who frequented Sugar Bowl in its early days, would still feel at home in the resort's car-free core. Most homeowners at the resort were members of prominent San Francisco families, but film stars such as Robert Stack, Jean Arthur, Claudette Colbert, Errol Flynn and Marilyn Monroe also skied at Sugar Bowl.

There are other Disney connections at Sugar Bowl as well, including the renamed Mt. Disney (known before 1939 as Hemlock Peak), which rises to nearly 8,000 feet. The Donald Duck run, off the Disney Express chairlift, is an expert slope between the Eagle and Pony Express pistes. Not a bad return for an initial $2,500 investment by Disney, who skied at the resort several times with Schroll and fellow Austrian Bill Klein, who directed the ski school until 1957.

The resort, which is on the west side of Donner Pass and gets as much as 500 inches of snow each winter, was the first in the Sierra to have a chairlift (a single-seater). For years, it was the site of the Silver Belt ski race, which drew top competitors from around the world.

Today, Daron Rahlves, who won 12 World Cup races and competed in four Winter Olympics for the U.S., is one of the resort's ambassadors. On March 14 and 15, the resort will host the Rahlves' Banzai Tour at Sugar Bowl with a race down the famed Silver Belt Gully as part of the resort's 75th anniversary. — By Brian E. Clark

excerpted from saminfo.com

Three new safety-related studies commissioned by the National Ski Areas Association (NSAA) suggest that

- Terrain parks have not led to an increase in catastrophic injuries
- Ski and snowboard injuries overall are trending downward
- Helmets reduce head injuries.

In the three studies, based on data supplied by NSAA, trauma-related catastrophic and fatal injuries incurred by people while skiing and snowboarding were used to compute the rate of injury per million visits from 1990 to 2010.

Data from selected resorts was used to estimate the overall incident rate based on ski patrol reports of serious injuries per 1,000 days of operation at 10-year intervals for 1990, 2000, and 2010.

Terrain Park Injuries

Ski areas first started building terrain parks in the early 1990s, so researchers were able to compare data from a time when none of the ski areas in the study had a terrain park.

During the past 20 years, the rate of fatal and catastrophic injury and the overall incidence of any injury have not changed.

In fact, the authors say that providing specifically designed jumping features that are tested before being opened may reduce the incidence and severity of injuries to jumpers. Segregating jumping may also reduce the incidence of individuals being struck by jumpers, the study states.

Snowsport Injuries Trend

In a second study, commissioned by NSAA, researchers found that skiing and snowboarding injury rates are decreasing, and the prevalence of collision incidents with fixed objects and other persons on the slope is also trending downward.

13,145 incident reports and 4,618,194 visitation days at selected ski areas over a 40-year period were examined. The skiing incident rate was 3.1 per 1,000 visits in 1980, 2.66 in 1990, 2.63 in 2000 and 2.5 for 2010.

The snowboard incident rate is a bit higher than for skiers. It has decreased by nearly 1 percentage point since 2000. There were 6.1 snowboard incidents per 1,000 visits in 2010 compared to 6.97 in 2000. There were 3.3 snowboard incidents per 1,000 visits in 1990, when snowboards first began showing up on the slopes in significant numbers.

Helmets Injury Reduction

Finally, a third study shows increased helmet usage has led to a decrease in the prevalence of head injuries.

The study showed that during a period when helmet use increased from 8 percent to 84 percent, the prevalence of head injuries compared to all injuries decreased from 8.4 percent to 6.8 percent.

The prevalence of potentially serious head injuries declined from 4.2 percent to 3.0 percent during the same time period.

Further, the occurrence of serious head injuries declined from 1 in 4,200 days of skiing or snowboarding to 1 in 11,000 days of skiing or snowboarding. The incidence of any head injury declined from 1 in 8,600 days of activity to 1 in 26,000 days of activity.

Helmets offer mitigation for head injuries such as skull fractures and scalp lacerations. Increased utilization of helmets was associated with significant reductions in potentially serious head injuries.

Use your head... Protect your most valuable asset.

riding SAFE TREE WELLS a safety hazard Best defense is to give tree wells a wide berth

submitted by Gene Fulkerson

Tree wells typically form after a big dump of snow. Low hanging branches prevent snow from collecting around the base of an evergreen tree, creating a hollow space.

90 percent of people who fall into tree wells are totally unable to get themselves out. They are usually wedged head first underneath the snow.

I know. It happened to me. And while I wasn't in danger of suffocating, I could not get myself out of the hole. My friends stood around laughing until they realized I was in real trouble. And I was in bounds.

Roughly four people die from snow immersion suffocation in the USA every year. Many more become trapped and luckily are rescued.

If you're heading to the mountains this winter, make sure you know how to rescue yourself or a friend who is stuck in a tree well.

Avoiding Tree Wells

- Carry safety equipment for off piste and tree skiing including:
  - Cell phone with resort emergency number
  - Transceiver / beacon
  - Avalung Compass
  - Whistle Shovel
  - Probe Recco
- Wear bright clothing that does not blend with the terrain.
- Follow proper off-piste and tree-skiing protocol by skiing with a buddy and not using your poles' wrist strap. Your poles should have "powder" baskets.
- In dense tree areas or in poor visibility, ski or ride short pitches and stop to regroup often. Stay within sight of your partner!
- Ski and ride in control.

• Give tree wells a wide berth. Look at the open spaces between trees not at the trees.

Falling into a Tree Well

- As you fall grab any part of the tree and keep your head from sinking too deep into the snow.
- Yell or use a whistle to get your partners attention.
- Resist the urge to struggle, which might only bring more snow down upon you.
- Try to make a breathing space around your face. Stay calm to conserve air.
- Don't try to unclip your skis, unless you are certain you won't sink any deeper.
- Move your body in a rocking manner to create an air space for yourself. Your ability to survive depends on your ability to keep breathing.
- As long as you don't suffocate, your body will heat and compact the snow over time, giving you a better chance of being able to wiggle out.
- Trust that your ski buddies are on their way.

Getting a Ski Buddy Out

- If possible, use your cell phone to call ski patrol or the resort's emergency number.
- Don't leave to get help. Stay with your ski/board buddy!
- IMMEDIATELY begin snow immersion rescue efforts.
- Go directly for the airway, and keep it clear, be careful not to knock more snow into the hole. Clear any snow from the airway and continue necessary first aid or extrication efforts

• Do not try to pull victim out the way they fell in. Instead, determine where the head is and tunnel in from the side.

Finding a Ski Buddy

What to do if you did not witness your partner going down but suspect they may have.

- Immediately call resort emergency number and report point last seen.
- If you can not get back to the area where you suspect your partner may be in a timely manner, go to closest lift terminal and notify patrol of your location and stay there until contacted by patrol as what to do next.
- If you do NOT have a cell phone, ask nearest guest to call resort emergency number.
- If phone service is not available and you are unable to return to your partner to help in a timely manner, proceed to nearest location to contact ski patrol or resort personnel. Remember these accidents are "time critical."

Good start to the season, then it rained and then is snowed... sign of winter to come?

This is our ninth annual December trip to Big White in hopes of catching some of that early season powder. This was probably the sketchiest start to the season I've seen in a long time. Certainly hope it's not a sign of a winter to come.

The highlight of the trip was the Big Reds at Big White. This event just gets bigger and better every year. Wines were provided by the local wineries of the Okanagan region from Kelowna to Osoyoos. Food was provided by the local restaurants of Big White.

And while the whole Big White program hadn't yet kicked all the way in, there were a few of the activities offered. There was free hot chocolate and s'mores at the skating rink at Happy Valley. There was also a night of free tubing with a big bonfire. This was so much fun that you must do it. The fireworks display was incredible and we could view it from our deck.

I love to hike and am looking for folks to go hiking with. I like exploring new venues and tend to prefer intermediate to difficult trails but I am open to anything. I recently learned about San Diego's Ho Chi Minh Trail.

San Diego's own Ho Chi Minh trail got its name in the 60s from UCSD surfers who would take the trail to the beach, infamously naming it after the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Vietnam. The trail leads close to Black's Beach, so I'm told.

Be prepared for a mini adventure that is not for the faint at heart. This trail is completely made of sandstone after all, which can crumble at any moment. It is never safe to explore this trail after a rainfall as the sandstone becomes far

About Pacific Rim

Pacific Rim Alliance is all about skiing. We were formed with the express notion of skiing the world and never having to attend a meeting.

Originally we concentrated on skiing exotic resorts in Europe, South America and New Zealand. These have been scaled back due to the weak economy. While many of us are now retired we are looking at locations that fit the quote that "we have more time than money."

We have gotten into the groove of running early and late season ski weeks to Big White Ski Resorts in Canada. These trips run about $700 per person and include hotel lodging (double

Official Documents

We are a 503(c)7 not-for-profit corporation founded in 1997 and incorporated in the state of Nevada. We file a Form 990 yearly.

A current copy of our Bylaws and Articles of Incorporation can be found via the "About US" link on most pages of our web site.

Liability waivers are required for membership on all trips and events. Trip waivers can be downloaded from our website. occupancy), 6-day lift ticket, ground transfer from/to the Kelowna airport and various parties. We believe that Big White offers the best and most consistent early and late snow.

We do not offer Mammoth trips since there are so many ski clubs in both the Los Angeles and San Diego Councils that offer quality affordable bus trips to Mammoth. Just ask and we'll direct you.

We believe in giving back to our ski community.

 Our major fund raiser is our annual wine maker dinner for Can DO MS. To date we have raised more than $36,000.

SKi History

We have a relatively young history as a ski club. Most of our history can be found in our past newsletters and photo galleries cataloged since our beginning.

We also have a collection of history of ski clubs, councils, the Far West Ski Association and ski resorts in the west. It is a work in progress updated regularly by our Club historian. If you have any history you would like to share, contact Catherine Ohl at ohl@acatmeowz.com. Visit our website to learn more.

- We encourage members to participate in other on-snow fund raisers for so many good causes— Hope on the Slopes (for cancer), Ski to Defeat ALS, USARC Ski-a-thon and Peak to Peak Pedal (for adaptive skiers) and the Jimmie Heuga Vertical Express for MS.
- We also support junior racers (through the Far West Ski Foundation), Women's Ski Jumpers USA, Wounded Warriors, The Unrecables and others.

Learn-to-Ski Programs

We encourage our members to participate in the National Bring-A-Friend challenge (http://www. bringafriend.org/) annually in January.

There are some incredible deals for first time skiers. It's a great way to get your friends safely on the slopes.

Another significant program is National Ski Safety Month (www.nsaa.org/safetyprograms/national-safety-month/) held annually in January.

Use your brain, it's the most important part of your equipment. ~Kevin Andrews and Warren Miller, Extreme Skiing
