

Winter Adventures at Big White

It is hard to believe that April is fast approaching. On the mountain it looks more like mid-January with all of the incredible snow they have received. With almost 3-feet of champagne powder falling in the past week spring skiing will take on a new meaning! Spring is a time of rejuvenation and new beginnings. We encourage you to try something new this spring and at Big White we have adventures both on and off the slopes!

Ice Climbing

"Let's go Ice Climbing!" are not words you usually here coming out of your friends mouths but at Big White this can regularly be heard around the resort. With their impressive 60 foot ice tower located in the Happy Valley Adventure Park it is no wonder. Constructed out of 4 telephone poles this giant ice cube with 3 foot thick ice is something to behold!

Ice climbing can be a difficult sport to try but the manmade Ice Tower has made it more accessible. All the gear is provided and according to resident tower expert Toni Clark, "it's about technique not just strength."

If you have not already tried this unique and exciting activity head down to the Adventure Park!

Snowshoeing

Get off the beaten track and enjoy Big White's breathtaking back country with a guided snowshoe tour!
