

LOS ANGELES COUNCIL OF SKI CLUBS BRINGS YOU MT. BACHELOR SKI RESORT

2013 annual trip

Dates: February 23 through March 2, 2013

There is lots to do at Mt. Bachelor ski resort. You have a 5 of 6 day lift pass so you can just ski all you want. The mountain has a great variety of terrain for all levels of skiers/boarders, with 25% for intermediate (and these are nice runs) 35% for advanced (these are exciting runs), and 25% for experts (and they do mean expert)! The 7 high speed quads get you up the mountain quickly and that's a plus.

They have a wonderful Ambassador program. These folks know the mountain like the back of your hand, so you can't get lost. And, with a bit of arranging, it can be set up to have guided tours with them each day.

Some of the fun things we have planned: Arrival Party on Saturday, an Après ski party on Sunday, Nastar racing, and more. Breakfast is included each morning, so no wait there. There is also breakfast up on the hill at Coco's Café in case you just can't wait to get on the slopes. And probably a cocktail party or two thrown in – just in case we need more entertainment and something else to fill the trip.

For those non-skier who come with us, you don't have to just sit at the spa (though that can be fun) - there is snowshoeing, dog sledding, tour of the Deschutes Brewery, the High Desert Museum, snowmobiling, tubing for the very hearty sort. There is also a very neat deal of a tour of Crater Lake ($110 per person), but this sounds like such a great thing to do – it's well worth it.

We have 3 nights included to go into the town of Bend: one night for the ale trail, one night for the art walk or whatever else you want to do, and one for heading to the Deschutes Brewery for dinner (food/alcohol is not included in the pricing for the trip though – sorry.) And, I do believe we are there for First Monday of the month – when everyone and anyone descends on Bend – flash mobs in the streets, yes, it's crazy, but it sounds like there is a lot of fun to be had that evening.

We are staying at Sunriver Resorts, which is a wonderful place to stay and play. It's really big, and laid out so it's not hard to find anything. They offer a full spa line, workout rooms, walking, biking, hiking, and if the river in front of the resort is open, maybe even some canoeing. Three different types of lodging are available here: the trip price includes a 4-person condo with cooking facilities; or for an additional fee, there are 2-person guest rooms (known as the Lodge Village Guestrooms), which are much like hotel rooms, and also the 4-person guest rooms, with 2 baths, and cooking facilities, (known as the Lodge Village Suites). You can upgrade your lodging if you want. There is one more thing – just in case you have not had enough fun yet – we are including a SALSA DANCE NIGHT with an instructor. So bring your dancing shoes too.

For $1399 (which includes an estimated air fare at this time), there is just a lot to do here. We are taking reservations now. Don't be late for signing up! Contact Sandy Blackwell.
