Spring | 2011

BIG skiing for spring

Even though this ski season is coming to a close there is still a bit of skiing to be had. While it may be warming up here in Southern California, the mountains are still getting dumped on. It's truly been an epic winter.

We have two ski and board trips on tap for this spring.

BIG SKY, March 24-29, 2011

First up, we are headed to Big Sky, MT for 5 nights lodging and 4 days of skiing. We will be flying into Bozeman and staying slope side at The Huntley. A daily hot buffet breakfast and nightly après ski parties are included for the low price of $725 per person based on double occupancy. Round trip transportation from Bozeman is included but you are on your own to get air. Delta and Alaska have round trip air fares for around $400 out of Los Angeles and San Diego.

BIG WHITE, April 3-10, 2011

We will be closing out Big White's season in British Columbia, Canada. We will be flying into Kelowna and staying slope side at The Inn at Big White. Lodging, lift tickets, nightly après ski parties and transportation to/from Kelowna are included for the low price of $699 per person based on double occupancy. You are on your own to get air. Air Canada and Alaska have round trip air fares for around $500 out of Los Angeles and San Diego. West Jet is also available out of Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

2011 Water Ski

We've been working with the Radar River Rats on our summer water ski trips. We have once again scheduled nine trips for June through October. We set camp up on our own beach on the Colorado River, 10 miles east of Needles. Equipment and instructions are available. Details, dates and cost can be found on page 2.

BIKING Fun

I've been checking out some intermediate bike trails in the San Diego area and have a bunch of ideas for combining biking with picnics and other fun. For instance, we could ride around Mission Bay and end at The Pennant for 1/2 price beer and food. Interested? Just give me a call or drop me an email.

FAR WEST SKI ASSOCIATION

Los Angeles Council is hosting the 2011 convention at Pacific Palms Hotel in Industry Hills on June 9-12, 2011. Even if you can't attend the whole weekend, it's worth it to make an appearance for the Silent Auction where you can bid on more than $100,000 worth of lodging, lift tickets, golf and product. Plus there's dancing and catching up with friends and your favorite resorts. And it's fun. ♦

Throughout his life, Bernie was involved in many charitable and community organizations, such as the Jaycees, Toastmasters, Chamber of Commerce, Lake Mead Yacht Club and the Las Vegas Ski Club.

He was also an avid skier and has skied on slopes around the world. He was one of the founding members of Pac Rim. Boating was another passion of his and spent many hours on Lake Mead.

Vail Resorts to Invest $30 Million at Northstar

Vail Resorts plans to invest $30 million on capital improvement projects at Northstar-at-Tahoe.

Plans include the installation of a new backside high-speed chair that will serve expanded gladed terrain and additional ski trails, increasing the skiable terrain by 10 percent; construction of a 500-seat on-mountain restaurant, with an outdoor deck and 200 more seats; and the addition of Patagonia and Burton retail outlets, as well as a signature restaurant, to the Village at Northstar.

Vail intends to further extend service with more family-friendly terrain, more grooming and snowmaking, a best-in-class on-mountain dining experience, and a village experience that is far superior to any other destinations in the region.

Ski Apache adds Slots

The Elk Lodge at Ski Apache, New Mexico, became the nation's first winter resort to offer slopeside slot machines. The resort boasts 12 machines and operates Friday through Sunday, 10 AM to 6 PM. So far the slots have drawn skiers and non-skiers alike.

It took the National Indian Gaming Commission four months to approve the new gaming location on the Mescalero Apache Reservation. Much of Ski Apache is leased from the Forest Service, but Elk Lodge is on the reservation.

Attack at Russian Resort

Caucasus region or Russia. In addition, a gondola at the resort was blown up.

According to published reports, last month President Dmitry Medvedev announced a $15 billion plan to turn the Caucasus into a tourist destination, which did not sit well with Islamic rebels who have been demanding a separate Islamic state in the North Caucasus.

Russia is set to host the 2014 Winter Olympics in nearby Sochi.

Eldora offers Free Skiing to other Areas' Ticket Holders

Beginning February 21, 2011, Eldora Mountain Resort, Colorado, is offering a free day of skiing to anyone who has a lift ticket or a season pass from any other ski area. The offer is designed to introduce Eldora to skiers and riders.

The free skiing offer is not available on Saturdays, to avoid overcrowding at the area. The promotion will run for only a limited time; Eldora has not determined how long it will remain in effect. ♦

SAGA of operations at TAMARACK

Judge Approves Ski Season

December 6, 2010 Idaho bankruptcy court approved a ski and snowboard season at Tamarack Resort, even as bankruptcy proceedings continue and lender Credit Suisse seeks to turn the bankruptcy proceedings into a liquidation. The season opened December 20, 2010 and operates four days a week.

BAC Repossesses Two Lifts

Bank of America now owns a mile-long detachable quad that rises 1,650 vertical feet to a pod of intermediate and advanced runs, and a shorter access lift for the Whitewater neighborhood. Tamarack owes more than $4 million on the lifts. BAC will most likely sell the lifts which have not been part of this year's operations at Tamarack.

Back to State Court

Tamarack Resort has been removed from federal Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection and sent back to the state court. Credit Suisse is petitioning to convert the case into a Chapter 7 liquidation or be allowed to begin foreclosure proceedings. The resort's total debt is reportedly more than $350 million, $256 million of that to Credit Suisse and its investors. ♦

SAFETY & FITNESS tips

Be Prepared

*Mentally Physically
Equipment-wise.*

Ski Fitness

Skiing is a demanding sport. It subjects your body to repeated stresses and involves strenuous exertion at high altitude.

The fitter you are, the better and longer you will be able to ski each day, and the lower your risk of injury will be. Any fitness program should include coordination, balance and flexibility.

Anaerobic Fitness. Skiing calls for anaerobic fitness, the strength and ability to sustain short bursts of exertion. Skiing bumps, short radius turns and schussing all require power, as well as stamina.

Aerobic Fitness. Perhaps most importantly, you need to be aerobically fit in order to exercise in the thin mountain air. There's only one way to achieve this, and that's through some sort of program of exercise which raises your heart rate and keeps it there over a period of at least 15 minutes.

Finally, your ski fitness program should improve your coordination, balance and flexibility, allowing you a more dynamic range of movement.

Ski Safety Tips

Wear a helmet. One of the best ski safety tips is really a matter of personal choice — whether or not to wear a helmet while skiing. The NSP (National Ski Patrol), the NSAA (National Ski Areas Association) and the PSIA (Professional Ski Instructors of America) encourage wearing a helmet, but, it isn't mandated for adults, yet. The most important safety tip regarding wearing a helmet would be to wear a certified helmet.

Spring brings conditions that are often ideal for an avalanche. The weight of the melting snowpack becomes heavier until reaching the point where the underlying snow is no longer able to support it and lets loose.

Exercise in advance. You will have much more fun on the slopes if you're in good shape. Work your way up to skiing by exercising year-round on a regular basis.

Use proper ski equipment. Don't borrow equipment. Rent from a ski shop or at the ski resort. Make sure your ski boots are fitted properly and your bindings are correctly adjusted.

Prepare for the weather. Wear layers of clothes and wear a helmet liner, a hat, or a headband. Wear gloves or mittens. Bring an extra pair in case the first pair gets wet.

Get proper instruction. Sign up for ski lessons. Even experienced skiers should polish up their skills with a lesson now and then.

Wear goggles. Wear ski goggles that fit properly around your helmet with at least a UV400 rating.

Take a break. If you're tired, take a break and rest for a while in the lodge. While you're resting, make sure you eat and drink enough. Know when to quit.

Ski with a friend. It's always safer to ski with a friend so he can watch out for you and vice versa. Prearrange a meeting place in case you get separated and use walkie-talkies or cell phones to stay in touch.

Respect your limits. Do not ski trails that are above your skill level. Trails will be clearly marked as to what level skier they are appropriate for. On a similar note, stay in control of your skis and focus on the trail skiing. Accidents happen more readily when we are distracted.

Follow the rules. Do not go off-trail. Obey posted trail closure and other warning signs. Remember that skiers who are in front of you, and below you, on the trail have the right-of-way. Don't come out of the trees without looking first. ♦

Airline tips

Avoiding AIRLINE Fees

Check the Airline web sites for the latest fees as they are in a constant state of flux.

Is your bag overweight by 1 pound? Want a pillow for your nap? How about your favorite seat? Such small luxuries could cost you — unless you're prepared.

Airfare represents a mere fraction of the total cost to fly these days. From the time you walk into the terminal until the plane lands, your total fare will surpass the quote you received from your favorite travel site when you booked the flight.

It seems like every week, it's a different airline and a different fee. Blame it on high fuel costs and an economy in the tank, which have sparked billion-dollar losses industry wide.

Looking for ways to make up for those losses — without scaring off customers by raising fares — airlines have begun charging for the most basic amenities.

For consumers, the best defense is to factor in the fees each airline charges when comparing fares. Here are seven instances in which fees are assessed and how to avoid them.

Booking

Except for Southwest, every major airline charges a fee to book a flight over the phone. The worst offenders are Delta, Frontier and United, which charge $25 per ticket.

Third-party travel sites like Expedia and Orbitz charge around $7 per ticket hidden in the cost of the ticket for online booking. To avoid these fees, book directly on an airline's Web site.

Redeeming Frequent-Flier Miles

You now have to pay extra to use your frequent flyer miles. US Airways charges $25 to $50 for you to book a flight using frequent-flier miles. American charges $5.

On October 1, 2011 airlines began charging new fees for rewards upgrades ($50 to upgrade from coach to first class on a domestic flight, for instance) and higher mile requirements (a round-trip ticket to Europe costs 20,000 more miles). Worse, it's extremely tough for frequent fliers to redeem their miles now that airlines have cut back on flights.

Choosing a Seat

Opt to stretch out in an exit row, and it'll cost you. AirTran charges a flat $20 each way for those seats, while United charges anywhere from $14 to $109 per flight. Even if you aren't angling for extra legroom, you can get charged just for choosing a seat.

Changing a Ticket

Southwest is the only airline that doesn't charge domestic ticket holders for altering an itinerary. Change a flight on any other airline, and you can expect to pay a fee ranging from $75 (Alaska for online changes) to $150 (American, Continental, United and US Airways).

The best defense against these fees is to solidify plans before you book. Paying a slightly higher fare usually costs less than getting hit with a change fee.

The friendly skies aren't so friendly these days.

Curbside Baggage Check

Don't feel like rolling your suitcases inside the terminal? It'll cost you. Northwest and US Airways charge $2 per bag for curbside check-in. Roll your luggage inside in order to avoid the first of many fees at the airport.

Checking Bags

When it comes to checking luggage, it's now a virtual fee-for-all. American, Continental, United, Delta, Virgin and US Airways all charge $25 for the first checked bag and even more for a second.

Think you can avoid the second-bag fee by stuffing everything into one case? That may end up costing even more. Going just 1 pound over the 50-pound limit triggers an overweight fee of $50 to $175 (United). Stick to carry-on bags although be prepared to fight for space.

In-Flight Amenities

Forget about relaxing with a soft pillow and a cold drink. US Airways, for example, now charges $2 for nonalcoholic drinks.

And be prepared to get hit in other ways. Want a pillow and blanket on your JetBlue flight? That'll be $7. To avoid paying $3 for a bag of chips, pack your own snacks. Buy your drinks in the terminal once you are past security. ♦

KIDS' korner

GOOD STUFF for the kids & grandkids

Things to know WHEN you take the kids to the slopes

A rookie ski family heading to the slopes requires courage, stamina, a truckload of gear and a fun attitude. However, skiing brings families some precious moments together. To help make your child's first adventure on snow smooth, here are a few recommendations.

Get professional help. Trust the experts to introduce your child to skiing and riding properly. Typically, you can put your child in ski school at age 4 and snowboarding at 6. Many resorts have programs for the toddler that include playing on the snow.

Camp is a tried and true method for your little skier to be with the cool instructors and their peers. Here the kids play games that are cleverly disguised learning. It can be pricey, but encompasses expert technique, safety, and the bonus of them making new ski friends. It's well worth it.

Check with the resort in advance to reserve ski camp or childcare, confirm the drop-off and pick-up hours, the price and exactly what is included. This research can begin on-line.

Prepare your child for their first day. Tell them they will be with other kids and a teacher for the day. Be enthusiastic as positive energy is contagious.

Familiarize your child with the gear prior to their big debut on snow. Pull them around the carpeted floor in their boots and skis the night before. This will improve their dexterity and heightened their enthusiasm.

Bring along a change of clothes, an extra pair of socks, head gear and mittens, all of which should be labeled.

Drop your child off early. Be prepared to fill out lengthy forms at check-in. If you plan to ski several days during the winter, look for multi-day coupon books.

Do your child a favor by honestly describing their ability level. Resist the urge to push them into an upper level.

Say goodbye and go. Hovering and checking up on your child is disruptive to the lesson. Your child is in capable care and the clock is ticking. Go ski.

At the end of the session, ask the instructor for a ski report card and find out what they recommend next. ♦
